JOIN THE GOAT HERD

HOW I GOT THE GOAT

Growing up my family lived in Belton, Texas where my daddy was a farrier. Every year we'd load the family up and ride to Ft. Worth where Daddy would work the Ft. Worth Stock Show and Rodeo. I was his official assistant step-n-fetchit when he would shoe the broncs, cutting and quarter horses that showed in the various events throughout that two weeks. Mama had a letter from the school letting me out so no truancy men would snatch me.

Back when I turned eight Daddy gave me a banana rope and I got good enough by the time I was thirteen to compete in the Jr. Goat Roping Run-Off. That's where they'd let a mess of goats out in the big ring and the teenagers that were still too young to ride would run around like a bunch of alley cats trying to rope these damn goats. They'd do this every night as a kind of seventh inning stretch... and if some kid won 6 out of 14 of these goat-runs they'd take home $100.

I wasn't any good for the first coupla tries. I tripped on my face the second time and got dragged by a big blue goat the third time. I almost gave up. At the Stock Show there was lots of down time for me to figure out trouble, and so I did. I got me one of them calf bottles and filled it with a warm Falstaff beer from outta the back of Daddy's truck. I culled me a real recognizable blue goat from the herd and fed it that beer. Come to find out goats like beer.

In fact I fed that goat two beers.

My event was set to kick off in about a half hour, so I lined up and kept my eye on that blue billy goat. The gun fired and there was chaps and hats flying, ropes swinging, dust churning... but I kept my eye on that blue goat. He couldn't run for crap. I roped him 7 out of 14 times and took my whole family, including cousins, to dinner at the Black Angus on the Waco circle. That was a hell of a swell two weeks.
